On 9 September 2022 the above-described horse underwent arthroscopic surgery of the right fore fetlock joint for removal of a small osteochondritis dissecans (OCD) fragment from the dorso-medial aspect of the proximal first phalanx.

The joint was examined using the standard arthroscopic approach to the dorsal aspect of the fetlock joint. The fragment was identified and removed, and the remaining defect was debrided to reveal healthy subchondral bone. The joint was flushed with sterile saline and recovery from anaesthesia was uneventful.
